MADISON OFFICERS HELP IN BIG RAID

Men's County Moonshiners Kill
Two of Federal Posse and Defy Authorities.

Governor Offers Reward of $500
(Associated Press)

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11—Gov. Morrow today offered a reward of $500 each for the arrest and conviction of Bob and Charles Ballard, who are being sought in connection with the deaths of Robert Duff and Dave Treadway, killed while attempting to arrest moonshiners in the mountains east of Mt. Sterling.

Hunt To Continue

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 11—State Prohibition Director Sam Collins has announced the hunt for the outlaws who shot and killed Agent R. E. Duff and possessor David Treadway within the last two days, will be continued until the gang responsible for the murders is brought to justice.

Sheriff Elmer Deatherage, of Madison county, and his son, Franklin Deatherage, took part in the hunt for the moonshiners who killed Prohibition Agent Duff in the hills of Menifee county Sunday. They were the first ones to reach young Treadway who was shot down while the posse was securing the underbrush. The father and son carried the slain young man over their shoulders back to the officers' rendezvous and their clothing was covered with his life blood when they got home Sunday night.

They say that Dave Treadway, who was killed, formerly worked in the Luskon garage here and was well known here. He had been conducting a garage at Irvine with his brother. When they heard that their father, W. P. Treadway, of Mt. Sterling was in the fight with the 'shiners in which Duff was killed Saturday, they joined him and took part in the hunt Sunday.

Sheriff Deatherage says that the officers were following tracks through the bushes, evidently made in hauling a still from the main headquarters of the moonshiners. The officer were advancing through underbrush in skirmish fashion, about 15 feet apart. Young Treadway got out in the open and three shots were fired from the hills behind the officers. His younger brother was the first to find him as he lay shot through the head. The position was exposed to the shiners' fire, so the officers hurriedly dragged the body quickly into the brushy cover and then took him on their shoulders back to their rendezvous.

The Madison county officers took the machine gun which has been used in raids here with them when they joined the posse of federal officers at Mt. Sterling early Sunday. All were heavily armed. Mr. Deatherage says that the moonshiners' main headquarters, at the door of which Agent Duff was killed Saturday, was deserted when the attack was made on it Sunday. He describes it as a perfectly camouflaged fort, with embankment built up, filled with oint and then the whole camouflaged with trees and bushes. A small trap door window in the rear afforded exit to those inside in case they wished to withdraw. The place was found deserted, however, but buried in the neighborhood 1400 gallons of still beer were found and about 40 gallons of whisky. The copper still was discovered, also. Sheriff Deatherage says it was one of the largest he ever saw, being of 80-gallon capacity. The worm could not be discovered.

Sheriff Deatherage says that two of the Ballards, who are charged with operating the big still and the slaying of the two men, had been captured a short time before Agent Duff was killed. They were placed in charge of Duff's son and Agent Carmichael. The other officers went to the "fort" and here the elder Duff was killed. His son immediately ran to the assistance of the officers when the shooting began and the two Ballards ran off from Carmichael.

Agent Duff, who was slain Saturday, has often raided with the officers in his county and section, and was known as a fearless man. His body bore 16 bullet holes. Sheriff Deatherage said, and everything was taken from it, including his watch, money and other personal effects.

After the shooting of young Treadway, officers said they saw two men running on top of the mountain. It was impossible to get a shot at them, however, and soon afterwards the officers withdrew with the body of young Treadway which was taken to his father's home at Mt. Sterling for burial. The elder Treadway is not an officer, but a business man of Mt. Sterling who has taken a deep interest in law enforcement. He has often joined posses going into the hills after shiners and has given the officers much valuable assistance, they say.

Just what plans the officers have to clean up that section of Menifee county have not been announced. Sheriff Deatherage says. Federal Agents Flannery and Carter came to Richmond Sunday night with the local officers. It is expected that every effort will be made to arrest the slayers of the two officers, though the officers admit that it is a difficult and dangerous undertaking. They say the moonshiners have every advantage of concealment knowing the mountain passes and hiding places so well that it is almost impossible to catch sight of them. They have already given evidence of their deadly aim from ambush.

The Early Story

Moonshiners of Menifee county took their second toll of prohibition agents Sunday afternoon when Dave Treadway, of Mt. Sterling, was shot through the head from ambush and almost instantly killed while acting as a member of a posse of revenue agents who were scouring the woods in a hunt for the slayer of Agent Robert E. Duff, who was killed on Saturday afternoon, according to the band of grim looking men who returned to Lexington last night after a long but fruitless search through the mountains and underbrush.

After one bullet had snuffed out Treadway's life and another had missed Agents Unthank and Phillips, the posse decided that it was best to withdraw before more of their number were shot from ambush without a shot being fired in return. It was said that the fugitives could flee from the underbrush of one cliff and run immediately to another without being seen, and that when the agents arrived they were ready to take another pot shot.

The band, under the captaincy of E. H. McFarland, one of the oldest moonshine raiders in the United States in point of service, reported that only one glimpse was gotten of the slayers during the entire day when one of the men who had been left on the road to guard the cars, saw two men sneaking along a cliff about 250 yards away. He threw up his gun and started to fire but was not sure whether it was members of his own party or the hunted men, and was afraid to shoot for fear of killing a member of the posse.

Circuit Judge Henry Prewitt stated last night over long distance telephone that he had requested Governor Morrow to offer a reward of $500 each for the capture of Robert and Charles Ballard, who are said to have been owners of the still which was being raided when Robert Duff was killed with bullets on Saturday afternoon. Both men are understood to have served prison terms for manufacturing moonshine liquor.

Following the shooting of Duff and the firing of about 150 shots at his comrades who were assisting in the raid, a call was issued by State Director Sam Collins for a general assembly of prohibition agents at Mt. Sterling for the purpose of cleaning out the alleged moonshining den which existed near there and to capture the slayer or slayers of Duff. About 15 agents answered the call of their chief and reported at Mt. Sterling Sunday morning, and assisted by about ten other officials, the posse started to the home of the Ballards, a notorious family in Menifee county.

Arriving at the home of Jeff Ballard, father of the boys who are being sought, they found the house entirely deserted. Search of the premises revealed a still, about 1,000 gallons of mash and about 50 gallons of moonshine whisky.

Moving forward in single file the posse started up the mountain in search of the Ballard brothers. They had searched through several miles of woods and undergrowth, when Dave Treadway got about 100 feet in front of the remainder of the group. A rifle shot was heard almost directly beside the posse, according to one of the members, and they dropped to the ground to locate the shot. It was not known that anyone had been hit by the shot until they had advanced a little further when the body of Treadway was found. He was dead with a bullet through the rear of his skull, and had evidently fallen without a groan as no outcry was heard by his companions.

The shot was evidently fired by a high power rifle from very close range.

The posse had advanced a little further when another shot whistled close to the heads of two members of the party. After a consultation it was decided to withdraw from what seemed to be a suicidal pursuit. It was stated.

Duff was killed when he and a party of raiders, including his two sons, Robert Duff, Jr., and Carroll Duff, Prohibition Agent D. M. Carter, of Lancaster, William P. Treadway and his two sons, Robert and Dave, of Mt. Sterling, Walter Oakley and Charles Carmichael, both of Mt. Sterling, went to the State Creek section and were endeavoring to force an entrance into a camouflaged log cabin, built according to a member of the party, for the express purpose of moonshining. Captain McFarland, one of the party that returned last night, said that the house was built squarely against the side of the mountain and the front was constructed of two layers of heavy logs with a dirt filling between them.

Duff had laid aside his rifle and was using a stick to batter down the oak door of the house when it suddenly flew open and a fusillade of shots were fired. Duff being hit in the chest and falling to one side. Other members of the party, who were out of the range of the shots, heard a hasty retreat, but soon came back to try and recover the body of Mr. Duff. When they were a few yards from the body, another volley of shots greeted them through the open door and they were forced to retreat again.

The body was not recovered for several hours, not until the slayers had retreated back into the mountain fastnesses. When rescuers reached the body it had been stripped of all valuables, including a watch, money, badge, revolver and rifle. It was reported that 16 shots had been fired into it. The moonshiners had also kicked his body over into a ditch used for waste material.

Before the still house was located the officers had served a warrant on Jeff Ballard, father of the two boys who are being sought now, who told the officers that he owned 600 acres of land in the neighborhood and his son, Albert Ballard, who was taken at the Ballard residence a few yards from where the first tragedy took place. Officers last night stated that nothing was known at this time to connect these two men in any way with the shooting in any way.

Members of the posse of prohibition agents who scoured the mountains Sunday were United States Commissioner Charles W. Ward, Captain Eugene McFarland, of Louisville, L. F. Morris, of Whitesburg, Roy W. Easley, of Campbellsville, J. W. Phillips, of Lebanon, John D. W. Collins, of Williamsburg, W. C. White of Versailles, Guy Tuggle, of London, Elmer Correll, James Wood and William Huddleson, of Lexington, B. F. Unthank, of Lexington, D. M. Carter, of Lancaster, E. B. PAYNE SPEAKS ON AMERICANIZATION

Closing Program at Eastern Normal For Education Week Saturday.

J. Howard Payne, superintendent of City Schools, gave the final address at the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School Saturday morning in observance of National Education week. He spoke on "Americanization," a subject which, he said, was not confined to the war period only but was vital enough to be of interest at all times. "America is a Utopia to which all nations have come. For this reason Americanization will always be important. We must make the environment of such as to further the development of the best in all those who come to make America their home. To do this we must be right ourselves to be the best examples to the immigrant."

"Americanization," declared Mr. Payne, "is not a tangible force, but is a spirit, caught from our poetry, books, rivers, mountains and traditions."

"This spirit was for a time lost in the full life lead by Americans. As former President Elliott of Harvard, puts it, we have gotten away from the personal sense of responsibility to our country which was so keenly felt by the Puritans. It took the World War to bring it back to us so we must catch and keep it ere it leaves us again."

Mr. Payne said that the boys and girls should be taught this personal responsibility in school and thus to have interest in the community welfare and the good of the country.

There are a few outstanding characteristics which Americans have always had, initiative, love of achievement, optimism and co-operation. They are likewise distinguished by ideals of liberty, not license, but it takes intelligence, said Mr. Payne, to see that there are some limitations to liberty, equality, pursuit of happiness and democracy. How to attain these ideals is the question of Americanization. Mr. Payne suggested the only solution was thru co-operation, intelligence, morality and prudence.

Americanization should teach the meaning of our flag. To the eye of the imagination it is our country, said Mr. Payne, which is the embodiment of freedom and liberty, power, prestige and glory, made so by the great deeds of our soldiers, the tireless efforts of our statesmen and the harmonious co-operation of all. We should keep the flag unstained by living up to the high ideals of our country which teach unselfishness, sympathy and gratitude.

TANKAGE PROVES EGG PRODUCER

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 9.—Animal protein, fed to hens either in the form of tankage, sour milk or semi-solid buttermilk, is a big item in keeping the winter egg basket full, according to results obtained during the year just past by S. J. Howard, a Henderson county farmer, living near Corydon. Mr. Howard, along with 48 other farmers situated in different counties of the state, has just completed the records which he kept on his farm flock for the year in cooperation with the extension division of the College of Agriculture to show the value of recommended practices in feeding and taking care of hens. Being without tankage two days last January caused his flock of 167 White Leghorns to lay 320 eggs less that month than they laid in the previous month, according to one of his reports. His flock was the third highest producing one out of the 47 for the year ending Nov. 1, each of his hens having laid an average of 164 eggs during the 12 months.

Mr. Howard, who started his records with 167 hens in his flock and ended the year with 71 hens, kept a mash made of bran, shorts, hominy hearts and tankage before his birds at all times. They also were given a grain feed of corn and wheat. After the records had been running for several months, he added oats to this grain feed. In one representative month during the year, he used a total of 112 pounds of bran, 135 pounds of shorts, 157.5 pounds of hominy hearts and 67.5 pounds of tankage in making up his mash. The same month he fed a total of 7 bushels of corn and 225 pounds of wheat. Although the tankage was left out of this feed for only two days one month, the egg production of the flock dropped 320 eggs before the hens could be brought back into laying after the tankage again was added.

Like many other successful farm poultrymen, Mr. Howard hatches his chicks in an incubator and broods them under a colony brooder, thereby keeping his hens for egg laying only. His work in cooperation with the college has made it possible for him to give his neighbors many other practical pointers in the feeding and care of hens so that they will lay more eggs.

CAMDEN'S BULL IS GRAND CHAMPION

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 6—America's Grand Champion Hereford bull and Hereford cow are from Kentucky! "Hartland Woodford" is the name of the bull and "Lady Woodford" is the cow. They are owned by Senator J. N. Camden of Versailles, and won their laurels at the American Royal Live Stock Show in Kansas City last week.

"Hartland Woodford" was the sensation of the show. He is not yet four years old; but is a Hereford giant, weighing 3100 pounds, and said to be the heaviest bull ever exhibited in an American show-ring. Great crowds assembled around his stall in the Royal barns at Kansas City last week to view his great bulk. He is thickly covered with smooth flesh, carries his lines well and possesses remarkable smoothness for his size.

"Lady Woodford," the Grand Champion female, is a sweet, feminine heifer in two-year-old form. She is thickly and evenly fleshed, has great breadth and a wonderful front, and is one of the best type which is the ideal of the beef cattle breeder. She was shown at America's leading shows last year and has never been defeated.

Senator Camden's Herefords made a great showing at the Royal, as did the Herefords of Colonel E. H. Taylor, Jr., of Frankfort. Colonel Taylor and Senator Camden brought home the majority of the Royal prize ribbons to the Blue-Grass state.

The Taylor herd of Herefords captured 32 prize ribbons, including the Junior Championship on the bull "Woodford 130th." Taylor entries took first prize in five classes. In the class of Senior Heifer Calves 45 entries were shown—the largest group of individual Herefords ever exhibited in an American arena. The Taylor heifer, "Belle Woodford 120th" captured the blue ribbon in this great class. In addition, the Taylor Herefords carried off two second prize ribbons and a third. Taylor Herefords also won the silver cup offered by the Kansas City Stock Yards Company for the best ten head of Herefords owned by one exhibitor. In the fat cattle show Taylor steers captured three ribbons.

Camden entries captured 25 ribbons including the two grand championships, the senior championship in the female classes on "Lady Woodford" and the senior championship in the bull classes on "Hartland Woodford." First prizes were won by Camden entries in the class of three bulls, any age, owned by exhibitor. Aged bull, junior bull calf, cow two years old and under three, aged herd, junior heifer calf and for two females, any age, bred and owned by exhibitor. In the fat cattle show, Senator Camden won four ribbons, including 1st prize for his senior steer calf "Billy Sunday."

Farmwife Shoots Sow Eating Her Chickens

Danville, Ky., Dec. 7—Finding a savage sow in the poultry house devouring her thoroughbred chickens, the wife of a farmer, living on the Stanford road near Danville, secured his hunting gun and blew the sow's head off. When he returned from the field he followed her suggestion to lather the offender for winter meat.

MOTHER!

Love Child's Bowels with "California Fig Syrup"

Even a sick child loves the taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

CREAM MARKET TENDING HIGHER

(Swift's Produce Review)
The demand for dressed poultry has not been brisk and selling markets have reflected the condition quickly, somewhat lower prices prevailing. Quite a large surplus has been placed in storage for sale later.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture is making an exhibit at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago December 29, which shows the benefit of culling the flock.

Two pens of live chickens are shown. One lot of 12 hens was not culled, and ate in one year 900 pounds of feed, costing $20.70. The 12 hens laid 100 dozens eggs during the year. Contrasted with this lot is one of 8 hens which were culled and which laid the same number of eggs but ate only 600 pounds of feed at a cost of $13.50. The lot of 12 hen that was not culled ate 50 per cent more than the lot that was culled and produced no more eggs. The extra cost of feed, however, is but one of the larger costs. Others are the extra labor, extra housing room and extra capital invested.

To enable the poultrymen to cull their hens properly, the exhibit gives the points to be looked for when determining a poor layer or a good layer. These points are quickly learned and are means of increasing the profits from poultry.

Arrivals of live poultry at Eastern markets have been lighter this week, following the Thanksgiving trade, but as quite a few cars were carried over from last week, there has been a full supply available.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture in its preliminary report shows stock of butter and eggs in cold storage December 1 as follows:

Butter	Eggs
1922 47,805,000 lbs.	3,258,000 cases
1921 65,129,000 lbs.	2,403,000 cases

Showing a shortage of 17,324,000 lbs. of butter and an excess of 835,000 cases of eggs. Deliveries of cream are about normal for this season of the year, but the market tendency has been higher and this has been reflected in the higher prices for butterfat throughout the producing sections. Consumption of butter is not as heavy as a few weeks ago and any further decrease in consumption or increase in production would have a tendency to make for lower prices.

The supply of fresh eggs continues light. Considering the demand, prices have reacted a little from the high point, and buyers are taking a more conservative position, due to prospects of some increase in production throughout the West and Southwest.

Treating Breeding Ewes Cuts Down Worm Trouble

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 8—Stomach worms, present in almost every flock of sheep in Kentucky, annually cause a loss to farmers and breeders of the state, according to L. J. Horlacher in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture. Farmers can take a big step at this time of the year to wipe out this trouble by treating their pregnant ewes with copper sulphate. If the ewes are free of worms before the lambing season comes, the chances of the lambs getting worms are considerably lessened.

A solution of made copper sulphate, commonly known as blue-stone, is the best one to use in treating the ewes. The solution is made by dissolving one-fourth of a pound of powdered copper sulphate in a quart of boiling water and the diluting this to three gallons. This is enough to dose 100 ewes.

In treating ewes, they should be kept off feed the night before and then drenched the following morning, after which they should be kept up for from six to eight hours longer. The dose for each ewe is about three and a half ounces or seven tablespoonsful. In case the ewes are in a badly run down condition, they should be given a drench of epsom salts about 34 hours after the copper sulphate treatment. One-fourth of a pound of the salts dissolved in water is enough for each ewe.
